

About the Movie:

Lighthouses in the Ocean State have a long rich history dating back more than 200 years. "Rhode Island's Historic Lighthouses" is a comprehensive look at the history, decline and rebirth of the beacons that grace our shoreline. In recent years, the lighthouse landscape in Rhode Island has been evolving at a growing pace. New restoration projects are getting underway and more and more people are working to save the maritime history that exists here. This 47 minute documentary covers all 30 of the lighthouses that were built in Rhode Island. It includes breathtaking views of the Rhode Island coastline, stories of tragedies and heroism, buildings lost and restoration projects completed and currently underway. "Rhode Island's Historic Lighthouses" includes a compelling piece on the history of Prudence Island's own Sandy Point Lighthouse.

About the Filmmakers:

Emmy award winning Director of Photography Jim Karpeichik spent over 2 years filming lighthouses in all seasons. Producer Heather Moreau has researched maritime history and interviewed key people including some who grew up in lighthouses, nationally recognized historians and those who today are leading the way in restoration. Sandy Point Lighthouse on Prudence Island is one of several featured in the film for it's role in the fascinating maritime history of Rhode Island and Prudence Island. Through the generosity of Mr. Karpeichik, all proceeds from the sale of this DVD through Prudence Conservancy will go directly towards the upkeep and restoration of Sandy Point Lighthouse.
